

MEDICAL DEVICE TRENDS

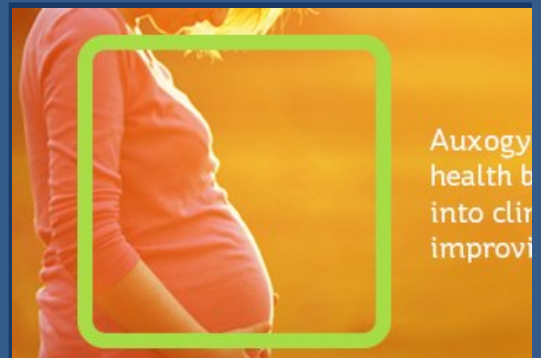

Product Approval

- FDA gives green flag to Biotronik's MRI safe pacemaker
- Sebacia touts study results backing its acne treating platform
- Medtronic receives positive feedback for its DFS
- Vascular pathways snags FDA approval for catheter system
- BSC's FDA approval of SICD makes CRM market competitive

IPOs

1. SteadyMed tones down its initial public offering to USD 40 million.
2. Philips ponders over 2016 IPO for its legendary lighting business

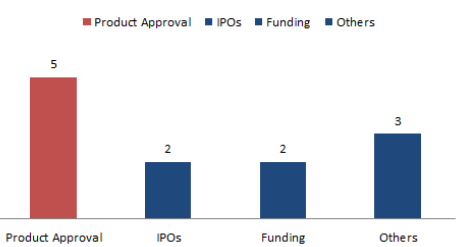

Funding

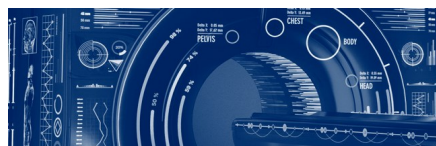

1. Intervene raises USD 5.9 million to take its minimal invasive device for chronic venous insufficiency to next level
2. Auxogyn lands USD 34 million funding to advance its IVF embryo

OTHER DEVELOPEMENTS

Stats for the day : Top features

QUICK VIEW AT TODAYS NUMBERS

GE tech hub works towards development of handheld device to monitor bedsores

Esperite acquires bioinformatics for genetic testing supplier, Inkaryo

Medical Device Trends
Your Online Trend-Tracker

MD Trends
March 20, 2015

Biometrics lever models offering new insights into liver biology and disease pathology

CN Bio looks to address hepatitis issues
US based CN Bio Innovations recently claimed that it will use the liver chip technology to help hepatic patients across the globe. Through the technology has its own short message, company wants to explore various drug discovery possibilities around the issue. The success comes as company's claim of being first to claim service provider of basic genetics platform. CN Bio innovation in life science Company which produces platform that aims human organ and help in speeding testing and development of therapeutic products. Company has already established some of the major landmark deals with leading pharmaceutical companies, who are on quest to find out potential molecules as a part of their drug discovery journey. CN Bio's platform namely organ on chip has remained successful in reducing both money and time, two very important aspects of drug discovery.

More Details

VASCULAR PATHWAYS
Vascular pathways lands FDA approval for its catheter system
Florida based vascular pathway gets FDA approval for its innovative intra vascular device Accuathr Waller Catheter System. Device calls itself innovative as it provides alternate solutions to the patients with challenging peripheral vascularities. Bill Bodd, CEO of the company in its recent news release, brings about customer system's ergonomic design, increased length, rolled tip features. He also claims that system is looking to explore areas which were regarded very deep by traditional IV placement in the past.

Newsletter Spotlight
Germany headquartered Biotronik recently received FDA green flag for its MRI compatible single and dual chamber pacemakers. MRI compatibility of medical devices has been long debated in medical arena, and in recent past has become a growing concern for the healthcare providers. As a result companies like Biotronik are competing heavily towards development of their innovative MRI compatible products. According to recent article feature on Business Wire, Biotronik is only CRM Company which all portfolio products are MRI compatible.

More Details

Focus Companies

Medical Device Trends Daily News Let-

Image Sources : Company Websites and Social Media Webpages

To Visit Medical Device Trends Click Here

Questions or comments? Email us at contactus@medicaldevicetrend.com, Follow us on Twitter @MD_Trends or LinkedIn Medical Device Trends

M&As

Growth

Innovations

Funding